Why it's scary: Like the best horror movies on this list, the Babadook isn't just about scaring its audience. The parallels between grief and depression are no accident and it's interesting to note that one of the most disturbing sequences in the movie has nothing to do with a monster, but everything to do with a young mother losing control of her son while she tries to drive. On the surface, you might mistake The Babadook; for something from The Conjuring universe but delve in and this is an intelligent, grueling fright-fest with a knowledge of exactly what you're afraid of. Even if you didn't know it when you sat down to watch;

The movie: Who'd have thought an old Star Trek mask could be so terrifying? Director John Carpenter created a modern classic when he gave his villain a blank William Shatner mask to wear while he stalks babysters around the fictional town of Haddonfield, Illinois; The movie created another icon, too, in Jamie-Leigh Curtis, who'd become both a scream queen in her own right, and the template for all final girls to follow. Who cares if the first scene makes no sense? This is a movie that starts with a child-murdering his sister while wearing a clown mask and if that's
