Featuring a tax rate of Bitcoin varies according to the source and the period of analysis. However, it is possible to identify some general trends. According to data from the University of Cambridge, cited by the specialized site Cointelegraph, the number of active Bitcoin wallets increased from 6.7 million in September 2024 to 60 million in September 2024, indicating a significant increase in the adoption of the cryptocurrency. Although, studies conducted by companies like Chainalysis and Statista show that the value of transactions in Bitcoin has grown progressively in recent years, suggesting that the adoption of the cryptocurrency is expanding among simple enthusiasts to include institutions, financials and companies. However, it is important to note that the adoption of Bitcoin is still relatively low compared to other payment methods, such as credit and debit. Although, the volatility of Bitcoin prices can discourage some users and companies to adopt it as a form of payment.
